Status Yohannes Abraham, executive director of Joe Biden's transition, told reporters Friday that transition teams at the Defense Department were told Thursday that meetings were being halted for two-weeks. Transition teams, which meet between the incoming and outgoing administrations to ensure a smooth transition after the inauguration Jan. 20, have run into resistance among departments and agencies," Abraham said. "But we have met isolatepolitical appointees in a number of departments and agencies. "We have met isolated resistance in some corners, including from political appointees within the Department-of-Defense. We were concerned this week with the abrupt halt in already limited cooperation there."Biden team complains about Pentagon resistance to transition." A failure to work together could have consequences well beyond January," ...Lock and Load, folks... I smell Martial law.
